BusinessSafe Threat Topic: Hurricane Season 2022

Hurricane Season began on June 1st and brings many potential risks and dangers to Florida businesses, homes, residents and visitors. These threats can include flooding, power outages, and wind damage. Damage from hurricanes and tropical storms can further affect communities with road closures, business closures, and other recovery processes. To prepare for the current hurricane season, this article is meant to provide additional resources from state and federal agencies to help Florida businesses, residents, and visitors stay informed and be prepared.

Planning and Preparation

With supply chain issues persisting, it is important for businesses and individuals to have a comprehensive plan and ensure they have the resources needed for a potential emergency. These resources can help businesses and individuals plan and prepare for hurricane season and other emergencies.
